PROBLEMS Of The HBART By Mrs. Elivabeth Thompson.

LAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am a woman 54 years old. When I was 17 my father died and left my mother and me without any support. I went to the country to teach school. When I was 24 years old we moved to another town and there I had a 19year-old bey in my class. He worked on a farm and was big and old looking for his age. We fell very much in love and when he was 21 and I was 25 we married. We had three children all of whom died when they were babies. My husband is the only man I have ever loved, and it seemed to me that every day I learned to love him more. It was not the same with him. At the age of 40 he became very successful and was called out of town a great deal As time went on he he has confessed to me that he loves another woman. He says that he will setbreak my heart to give him up. He says that I must give him up whether I divorce him or not, because he does not mean to come home any more. What can I do to regain his love? I will do anything you say if it will only make him love me again. IDA H.

I believe your will be happied to give sour husband his freedom than to force him to be tied to you. Love once lost is practically impossible to regain. I would let him go if I were you. Dear Mrs. Thombson I was going with a young man and one night when a girl friend was going to stay all night with me he dropped in to call. I did not expect him or I would have had another boy over, fro. As it was the three of us sat around and talked. My girl friend tried her best to make a hit and she did, because my boy friend telephoned her the next day and asked her to come over. He has come to see me, too, but there is going to a dance and he has asked her to go. Do you think it was right of her to try to you think it was right of her to try to get him away from me? What shall I do to get him back?

DISAPPOINTED DOT. DISAPPOINTED DOT.
The girl certainly should not have tried to make your boy friend like her.
There is nothing you can do now, however, but let his liking for her run he course. Don't let him see that you care and perhaps in time he will decide that after all he likes you better.
